Chat With Joseph R McCuilagh on Politics and Candidates.

He is Bitterly Opposed to the Nomination of Mr. Blaine.

President Arthur the Strongest Man the National Convention Can Name.

Reasons Why the Republicans Owe Him the Honor of a Nomination.

Mr. Joseph B. McCullagh, the Napoleonic

editor of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, and one of the closet observers of the day, was found at the Ebbitt house last night. He had just returned from a drive with the postmaster general, and was in excellent humor for a chat. Being asked what he thought about presidential prospects, Mr. McCellagh said:
"President Arthur is in the lead for the nomination, beyond a doubt. And why shouldn't he be? He has received the indersement of the republicans of thirty-eight states. That number of republican state conventions put themselves squarely on record by adopting resolutions expressive of confidence in the ing resolutions expressive of confidence in the President and warm approval of his public acts. President Arthur's administration is without a blemish. He has repretented the republican party in the presidential chair as well as any man could have done, and the republicans and democrat, too, for that matter recognize that fact. For the republican actional convention to throw him over would be a confession of weakness that it will hardly make after admitting that that it will hardly make after admitting that that it will hardly make after admitting that he is the strongest man in the party, for that is what has been done. President Arthur will carry the fail strength of the party in November and more. If we cannot elect him we cannot elect anybody. That may as well be understood and honestly admitted at the

"As between Arthur and Blaine, what have you to say? Who would be the strongest before the people?"

before the people?"

"There is just this difference, one can be elected and the other cannot. Blaine cannot carry the full strength of the republican party, to begin with, and his repulsive, rotten record will repel the independent or detached record will repel the independent or detached voters. He is an unclesn man, and the people will not have him. To nominate him would be to court defeat. He stands self-convicted of prestituting the high offices he has held to build up a private fortune, of schabiting with corruption for dishonest money. O, no; his record would damn him."
"But would it, though? Why should a rotten record damn Blaine and not damn Filden, who seems likely to be the demo-cratic nomines?"
"The two cases are not parallel. Nothing popularity?"

"In passing through Pittsburg last night I noticed a great light not far from the track. "Do you see that light? inquired a gontleman, seated near me. 'Yes,' I answered. That comes from a natural gas well,' said he, 'and there is enough beside what you see burning to run two large mills.' 'Why don't they run another mill with what is going to waste?' I asked. They can't, for the reason that there is not power enough in it. It is 90 per cent. air.' That is what's the matter with Blaine's popularity. It is 90 per cont. wind and 10 per cent. gas. There is nothing substantial about it."

"Now, as to the strength of candidates before the convention?"

"Arthur will have a commanding lead there, I am confident, and, as I said before, I believe he will be nominated. He represents the full strength of the party, and is the only man who can carry New York. He will poll the party vote north of High bridge, and he is 25,000 votes stronger in the city than any

"Can be carry Obio?"

"Unquestionably. The Germans will support him and the conservative business interests and influences will be for him. Local issues will not cut much of a figure in the national election."

"What About Indians and the northwestern." What shout Indiana and the northwestern

"Indiana is not a Blaine state. It is more Arthur than Blaine, and Arthur will poll a heavier vote there. Iows has been howling heavier vote there. lows has been howling for Blaine for several years, just what for it cannot explain. Arthur will have a fair support from Iowa in convention when he needs it. He will have a majority of Missouri delegates. The northwest feels very kindly toward President Arthur."

"I see Wayne MaeVeagh is out in a card against the President."

against the President."

"The more opposition of that sort the president can inspire the better it will be for him. MacVeagh was one of Gardield's gushy mistakes. He never did anything to entitle him to a cabinet position, and he guesty histakes. He never did anything to entitle him to a cabinet position, and he did not amount to anything when he got there. His influence for harm is nil. The ground upon which much of the opposition to Arthur is based is untenable, and the objections argued against him are weak. In his letter accepting the portfolio of secretary of state three veers as Daine. of secretary of state three years ago, Blaine declared that he would do all that lay in his power to assist Carfield to a second nomina-tion. He assumed that the Garfield administion. He assumed that the Garfield administration was to last eight years. Now, Arthur was as much a part of the Garfield administration as Garfield himself. The President was killed and Arthur took his place, and has given the country a better and cleaner administration than Garfield could have done. Garfield would have shattered the republican party into a million pieces, and left us at the morey of the enemy. He had already broken it into several fragments, which Arthur found scattered about when he went into the white house. about when he went into the white house. and which he has carefully gathered up. He would have made a wreck of the party to a certainty."
"He did appear to possess a genius for that port of thins sort of thing."

"He certainly did. Arthur, on the other hand, has united the party and created very few actagonisms. The only thing that can be said against him is that he has not given office to every man who thought he had a right to expect favors of that kind. That was probable away to the fact the three right to expect favors of that kind. That was probably owing to the fact that there are not offices enough to go around. So far as I can learn his appointments have been acceptable. He has never appointed a man I asked him to during his entire term, but he appointed good men to the positions applicants of my choice in Missouri were after. I do not feel justified in turning against him because he didn't appoint the men I favored so long as good men got the places. Disappointed ambition is the inspiration of the strongest and the loudest-mouthed opposition to Presiambition is the inspiration of the strongest and the loudest-monthed opposition to President Arthur. Blaine has a slight advantage over all other aspirants. He became a candicate for president fourteen years ago, and he has been a candidate without coasing over since, including Sundays and holidays. Other candidates have taken an occasional rest."

"What do you think on the subject of democratic possibilities;"

"Until I came to Washington I had sup-

"Until I came to Washington I had sup-posed that Tildon had a walk over, but I discover there is a powerful scattment in the discover there is a powerful sentiment in the democratic party arrayed against him. He will not be a unanimous nominee of the convention by any means."

"Why this opposition—because he is dead?"

"Mainly doad? yes! and because in the event of his nomination the committee will have to tack on a man who is deader than Tilden. You see Tilden was not spoken of as a presidential possibility until within a period of six months, and the other candidates, who had set their little booms in motion and made their combination prior to that time, object to being shut out by a cadaver. They had believed Tilden to be quietly and unobtrusively sliding into his grave, and they are unhappy and disposed to rail at Gabriel for the premature biast of his trampet that is urrected the corpse between the church and the cemetery. This thing of interrupting a faueral procession to galvanize the corpse strikes the average democratic presidential candidate as a piece of political sacrilege that ought not to be encouraged. Nevertheless Tilden might run, dead man though he is, if the democratic convention could only put a healthy pair of hind legs on him, but they cannot do that. To take Tilden and leave out Hendricks would destroy the poetry of the work. The galvanic battery that can put life into Hendricks's legs has not been built. Six months ago McDonald, of Indiana, was far in the lead. He had mine-tenths of the northwestern states. I know that, Now his name is scarcely heard, but with Tilden out of the way he would come to the front again. And so with others. With all of this suppressed talent pushing at the deep there is no telling what the democratic convention will be the issue upon which the campaign will be fought—the tariff?"

"Not the tariff will not be the issue. The norther the campaign will be fought—the tariff?"

upon which the campaign will be fought—the tariff."
"No; the tariff will not be the issue. The partles are not widely apart on that question when it comes down to hard pan. There is practically very little difference between tariff for revenue and tariff for revenue with incidental protection. The issue of the campaign will be, 'Do the people want a change or do they not?' If a majority of the voters want a change, they will turn the republicans out and put the democrats in. If they are satisfied to let the government remain under the control of the republicans, they will elect a republican president. That is the situation in a nutshell. The struggle will be for the detached vote, which is the controlling element in several doubtful states. This is an intelligent, reasoning vote, which is is an intelligent, reasoning vote, which is averse to agitation and change where there is nothing to be gained thereby, and opposed to experimenting unnecessarily."

THE METHODIST CONFERENCE.

Election of Editors for the Various "Christian Advocates"-Other Business Transacted.

PHILADELPHIA, PA., May 20 .- The general onference of the Methodist Episcopal church reassembled this morning, Bishop W. L. Harris in the chair.

A telegram was read from the general asembly of the Presbyterian church of the United States naw in session at Saratoga Springs, N. Y., conveying to the conference the fraternal greetings of that body. A telegram of, a similar nature was read from Bishop Choney, of the Reformed Episcopal church. Suitable replies were ordered to be sent.

The judiciary committee presented a report providing for the appointment of a committee of five legal and two ministerial members of the conference to consider the matter of the ratic nominee?"

"The two cases are not parallel. Nothing very disreputable can be brought against Tilden. There is nothing really bad about the old man."

"What about the cipher dispatches and his attempts to buy electoral votes?"

"He will get out of that business on the ground that he was merely guarding against the commission of fraud. To be sure he had some very queer people about him, but the exigencies of the occasion may have made it necessary for him to employ the services of queer people. With Blaine it is different. His record is notoriously bad, and the more it is stirred up the werse it stinks."

"How do you account then for his seeming popularity?"

"In passing through Pittsburg last night Insticed a great light not far from the track. "Do you see that light?" inquired a gentleman, seated near me. 'Yes,' I answered. That comes from a natural gas woll,' said he, 'and 'there is enough beside what you see burning to run two large mills." DRIVEN CRAZY BY DEATH. The Pitiful Stories of Mrs. Ellen Douglas and James Lakin. SUSQUEHANNA, PA., May 20 .- On Wednesday last a six-year-old daughter of James Douglas, a farmer living in the neighboring county of Wayne, died after a few days' illness with whooping cough. The next day a second and only surviving child, aged 3 years, died from the same disease. The mother of the children was ill in bed when the children died. The news of the death of the first made her frantic with grief, and it required the strength of two men to held her in bed. She finally became calm, and learned of the death of the second child with apparent composure. The little ones were prepared for burial, and laid side by side in the parlor. The night before the funeral the father of the children left his wife's bedside and lay down to rest. When he awoke three hours later he was alarmed to see that his wife was gone. He ran into the parlor and discovered that the body of the youngest child was also missing. Mr. Douglas made a burried search, and found Mr. Douglas made a hurried search, and found his wife lying in the woodshed with her dead child clasued tightly to her breast. She was apparently soothing it to sleep. When she was lifted up and the child was taken from her she raved wildly. She did not recover her reason, and has been taken to an insane asylum. She is only 25 years of age.

About a year ago Eddie Lakin, a bright little son of Mr. James Lakin, of this village, disappeared. A search throughout the surrounding country for miles failed to reveal any trace of the lost child. Some menths later his remains were found in the woods any trace of the lost child. Some months later his remains were found in the woods near the village. The boy's father has mourned constantly ever since over the tragic loss of his boy, and a few days ago became a raving maniac. His whole cry was for his boy to come back. His family have been obliged to take him to the Utica insane explan.

What Canada Wants.

OTTAWA, May 20,-Sir Charles Tupper, acting, it is said, upon official instructions, visited Washington a few weeks ago to inter view the secretary of state, through the British minister, in order to ascertain if some measures could not be taken to seeure an extension of the fishery clause of the Washington treaty, and also with a view to the ington treaty, and also with a view to the opening of negotiations with respect to a general rectifrecity treaty between Canada and the United States. The result of Sir Charles's mission has not been disclosed, but it is understood that as soon as he reaches London the attention of the imperial government will be called to the matter, and the necessity for immediate action strongly urged. urged.

King Alfonso's Promises.

MADRID, May 20.-In his speech from the throne at the opening of the cortes, King Alfonso announced that the commercial treaty with England would be submitted to the cortes. He stated also that the rank of the Spanish representative at London would hereafter be that of minister, instead of em-bassader, and promised that the pay of sol-diers should be increased and the system of
